Privacy Policy

With regard to Regulation (EU) 2016/679 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 27 April 2016 on the protection of natural persons with regard to the processing of personal data and on the free movement of such data, and repealing Directive 95/46/EC (General Data Protection Regulation), hereinafter referred to as the “GDPR”, you are informed that:

1) As of the effective date of this Privacy Policy, the controller of your personal data is KANCELARIA ADWOKACKA Adwokat Katarzyna Stopińska, ul. Braci Tułodzięckich 5, 09-200 Sierpc, Poland, correspondence address: ul. Obrzeźna 3/195, 02-691 Warsaw, Poland, Tax Identification Number (NIP): 7761639475, tel.: +48 506-462-399, Law.Consulting@dollarro.com (the “Controller”). In the event of a transaction concerning all or part of the Dollarro Law business or its related assets, as referred to in points 11–15, the controller of all or a relevant part of the personal data may become the new purchaser of the Dollarro Law business or assets, or a law firm, legal counsel’s practice or advocate’s practice cooperating with such purchaser, provided that under the GDPR and applicable law that entity determines the purposes and means of the relevant processing. Any change of controller may take place only in accordance with applicable law, professional secrecy obligations and the information duties owed to data subjects.

2) Personal data will be processed for the purpose of performing an agreement for the provision of legal assistance covered by the instruction given to the Law Firm, in accordance with the GDPR and applicable specific laws, including the Polish Act - Law on the Bar (Prawo o adwokaturze).

3) Personal data will be retained for the period required by applicable specific laws, including in particular the Act - Law on the Bar and tax legislation.

4) Personal data may be disclosed to employees of the Law Firm and to lawyers cooperating with the Law Firm to the extent necessary for the provision of legal assistance and subject to applicable confidentiality requirements.

5) You have the right to access the personal data previously provided, obtain a copy, exercise data portability, request erasure, rectification or restriction of processing, object to processing, and lodge a complaint with the competent supervisory authority, to the extent that such rights apply under the GDPR and applicable specific laws.

6) Personal data will not be processed for direct marketing purposes without an appropriate legal basis.

7) Personal data will not be subject solely to automated decision-making, including profiling, which produces legal effects concerning you or similarly significantly affects you, unless the conditions required by the GDPR are met.

8) Providing personal data is voluntary. However, refusal to provide personal data may prevent the provision of legal assistance or the taking of steps at your request prior to entering into a contract.

9) Where a specific processing activity is based on consent, you have the right to withdraw that consent at any time. Withdrawal of consent does not affect the lawfulness of processing carried out on the basis of consent before its withdrawal.

10) For matters relating to the protection of personal data, until any change of Controller takes effect, please contact the Controller using the details specified in point 1. If the controller changes as a result of a transaction concerning Dollarro Law, the identity and contact details of the new controller will be communicated to data subjects in the manner required by the GDPR and may also be published through the Service.

11) By using the Dollarro Law service available at law.dollarro.com (the "Service"), the User acknowledges and expressly agrees to the possibility that all or part of the Dollarro Law business or the assets associated with it may be sold, transferred, contributed in kind, assigned or otherwise disposed of to another entity, organisational unit or natural person. Such a transaction may include, in particular, rights to the law.dollarro.com domain, trade names and other intellectual property rights, IT infrastructure, systems, databases, contracts, rights and obligations, and other assets connected with the operation of the Service. The User's agreement to the possibility of such a transaction concerns the business transaction as such and does not constitute consent to unrestricted disclosure of personal data, client files or information protected by attorney-client/professional secrecy.

12) In connection with the preparation or completion of a transaction concerning all or part of the Dollarro Law business, data may be disclosed to prospective or actual purchasers and their professional advisers only to the extent necessary, proportionate and lawful. During due diligence, the Controller will in the first instance use anonymised, aggregated or appropriately limited information, and access to personal data will be permitted only where an appropriate legal basis exists, adequate security measures have been implemented and confidentiality obligations are in place.

13) Any transfer of personal data, client documentation or information connected with the provision of legal assistance to an actual purchaser may take place only to the extent permitted under the GDPR, applicable national laws, the rules governing the legal profession and the duty of professional secrecy. Documents and information protected by attorney-client/professional secrecy may be transferred only to a recipient legally entitled to receive them and capable of ensuring the required level of confidentiality, and where applicable law or the nature of a matter requires separate client consent, instruction or other action, only after such consent, instruction or action has been obtained or completed. Acceptance of this Privacy Policy does not waive or limit professional secrecy.

14) If, as a result of a transaction, the identity of the controller changes or certain processing operations are taken over by another entity, the new controller of all or a relevant part of the data may in particular be: (a) the purchaser of all or part of the Dollarro Law business or assets, whether a legal person, another organisational entity or a natural person, or (b) a law firm, legal counsel's practice or advocate's practice cooperating with that purchaser, where, under the GDPR and applicable law, that entity determines the purposes and means of the processing, in particular with respect to data and client documentation connected with the provision of legal services. Depending on the scope of the transaction, the categories of data and the purposes of processing, different entities may become controllers of different datasets or categories of personal data. Data subjects will be informed of the identity and contact details of the relevant new controller, the purposes and legal bases of further processing and the other information required by the GDPR, to the extent and within the time limits prescribed by applicable law.

15) A transaction involving the Dollarro Law business may be structured as an asset sale, a sale of an enterprise or an organised part of an enterprise, an assignment of rights, a sale of the domain and infrastructure, or another legally permissible form of business transfer. Such a transaction does not require the sale of shares in, or the entire company Dollarro Sp. z o.o.; Dollarro Sp. z o.o. may, but need not, be the subject of a separate transaction. Following the effective completion of such a transaction, KANCELARIA ADWOKACKA Adwokat Katarzyna Stopińska need not remain the controller of personal data relating to the transferred Dollarro Law activities. The role of controller may be assumed by the purchaser or by a law firm, legal counsel's practice or advocate's practice cooperating with the purchaser, depending on the actual and legal model under which the business and the relevant processing activities continue. Nothing in this Privacy Policy authorises the transfer of personal data, client files or information protected by professional secrecy to an entity that is not legally entitled to receive or further process them.
